Denounced, because he is Loyal

The Abolition papers are delighted with and give great publicity to the ravings of a man named Gantt against the Democratic party This Gantt was a Colonel in the Confederate service in Arkansas, until from some personal grievances against the Jeff Davis Administration, he deserted it and came over to the Federal side He is evidently a politician of very easy virtue looking principally in his actions to interest alone which he now finds are subserved by applauding the Administration and denouncing the Democracy This discarded instrument of Jeff Davis is now considered the quintessence of Republican patriotism —Cin Enquirer

The above, which has been approvingly quoted by the Democratic papers in this State, is a striking proof of the hate which is cherished by the friends of treason towards those, who are sick of the rebellion, and are doing their best to crush it If Gen Gantt was still a rebel, in the active service of his old leaders, Democratic papers would not have a word to say against him, but because he sees and insists that the insurrection must be put down by force, and that slavery, which caused it must be ended, so that it shall do no more harm, he is abused and denounced. Does not this treatment of repentant Secessionists, show beyond the shadow of a doubt, that their support of the Union is not desired—that they would better please Northern Democrats if they continued to fight against the Union and to assist treason? Does it not show that they hate a Southern man because he is loyal, and have less sympathy for him than for those, who are trying to destroy the nation and to build up a confederacy on the corner stone of slavery?

A FRANK AVOWAL —Our Democratic readers, who talk about the Constitution and Union, "as it was and is," will probably thank us for quoting the following honest admission from one of their party organs—the Grand Rapids Enquirer—which tells what it calls Democratic truth to the people of Michigan It confesses frankly its sympathy with treason—it opposes boldly all measures for putting down the rebellion, and is on the whole about as good a creed of Democracy as we have lately seen

The Democrats and the South have no quarrel; why then should we be called upon to assault and murder our friends and desolate their lands? It seems unreasonable that sensible men should ask such a thing of us If we remain passive in this contest (if we don't go up civil war here in favor of the rebels, nor go into the rebel army) these abolitionists ought to be satisfied Again we say, Democrats, ponder well before you enlist.

THE RICHEST MINES —The best mines this summer, says the Portland Oregonian, will be the farms of the Willamette valley There is no mistake about it, and we hope their owners will understand it and cultivate every acre possible

We quote this from the Marysville Appeal, to show our farmers what opinion prevails in California as to their chance to make money, by raising crops instead of wandering away in search of uncertainties, and also to seek once more to impress upon them the absolute necessity, if Oregon is to become rich and prosperous, to depend upon labor, as the chief corner stone of its growth and wealth Neglected farms and workshops, abandoned for the glittering delusive hope of digging gold in Idaho will be a sad proof in the future of mischievous folly

FROM FLORENCE.—We are permitted to make the following extract from a letter dated at Florence on the 6th of March "New snow has fallen to the depth of about two and a half feet, making a total depth of about six feet on the ground here now. At present we are having [illegible] the snow is melting fast The ground is not frozen, and the miners will commence work four or six weeks earlier this season than last, and as there is much more snow, water will be more plentiful and last much longer If there are any that suppose the Florence mines are worked out, they are badly fooled In the Fall you will hear less complaint made against Florence"

"GONE TO VICTORIA"—Under this caption, the Puget Sound Herald of the 26th ult states that a man named Charles Wron was expelled from Pierce county, W T, on the steamer of the 14th, after ten days' notice by the stock-owners of that county The offence with which he was charged was stealing cattle His farm and other property was left in charge of an acquaintance Wron is one of the richest men of that section, being in possession of about fifty thousand dollars in all.

NEW YORK RENTS —New York rents on account of the taxes, are to be perfectly frightful this year. A hundred is a common addition to the rent of very common houses The smallest cottage in the suburbs brings $250 or $300 a year, and people pay for third floors in by streets what would lodge them in pringely fashion in any part of the European continent It is altogether hard work to make both ends meet for persons of moderate circumstances, and will be harder still by spring —gas bills, butcher and grocer bills, in fact, bills of all sorts are frightful to contemplate

CONTEMPT OF THE RIOTS ABROAD —We print below some extracts from letters lately received from an intelligent correspondent in London by a gentleman in this city The circumstances to which the writer refers deserves attention while the full credit is given to all that is stated in it It is unwise for us to neglect any fair comment which this critical moment may have any bearing upon the future course of events If we now make any mistake let us at least be certain that we are on the safe side Forewarned is better than forearmed The extracts are as follows

January 15 1864—South carolina and its garden, are here in London and in Paris It is as much a fad to be in Charleston in Autumn and appear to have many pretty cousins They have some and feel now get recruits to some of whom their fever but are too old to fight It is known, whatever it may be But of the rest satisfied they have more sensible of closing the war now than two years back They say against slaves, when they come to meet you in Georgia, always keep your gunboats in your base, they will mow you down like grass etc

January 30 —The feeling here and in France among the rebel refugees is more exultant daily They look forward with great certainty to some coming events, that are to turn the course of affairs in their favor immediately Governor Seymour and his infamous policy appears to encourage them vastly They say two hundred thousand darkies now being drilled who to a man can be relied on and to each, liberty is secured by deeds to their farms with liberty after the war is over to those they will, or remain on land rent and such deeds as set apart for them Believe as much of this as you will but they certainly have some hope here no doubt is to the coming of the Spring campaign This is evident enough, and it appears in the common mouth a stronger feeling than usual for which I am unable to account that the South cannot be subjugated to the end of time I follow your views and look for victory and the end of the war in one year

January 30 — I don't know how it is, but the rebel party here have certainly come round and are so joyous and exultant that it quite staggers most people to know the why or the wherefore, but that they look forward to some wonderful change in their fortunes is very evident, be what it may !!—Boston Advertiser

EARLY ABOLITIONISM IN IRELAND —It is a curious fact that Ireland was the first European country to abolish the Slave Trade Giraldus Cambensis says that a National Synod assembled at Cork in the eleventh century and prohibited the traffic in slaves between England and Ireland, and liberated all the bondmen then in the latter Kingdom This was when slavery existed in every other kingdom in Europe A canon of the Catholic church delivered in 1102 in London, said

Let no one for in henceforth presume to carry on that wicked traffic by which men of England have hitherto been sold like brute animals" But in that glorious reformation, Ireland was the first of all the countries of the world Before the Conquest, says William of Malmesbury, the English were in the habit of selling their children and other relations to be slaves in Ireland and it was said that the Anglo Saxon nobility sold their female servants when pregnant by them—exactly as the American slave-holders do Against this atrocity the Irish people rebelled even when they were the gainer by the traffic, and by an edict of the national synod agreed to emancipate all the English slaves in the Kingdom

How, then, can an Irishman be the friend of slavery in America? He cannot, if his mind be enlightened nor can he adhere to that accursed, outcast organization of man stealers, now known and despised as the "Democratic party"

IMPARTIAL JOURNALISM —The New York Commercial Advertiser having just been accused by a withdrawing subscriber of poisoning the minds of men against the government —an accusation which must appear absurd enough to all who read the Commercial regularly—says with feeling

When we express our gratification at the prospect which is fast opening before us of the extinction of human slavery in America we find ourselves reviled as an organ of Mr Chase and the Radicals' When we point out the fatal consequences of a financial policy which pays the nation's debts in promises to pay, and arrives by ingenious and sophisticated devices at results only attainable through fidelity to financial law we are denounced as "Copperheads and traitors"

Exercising a wise philosophy under circumstances which are by no means peculiar to its own let the Commercial fall back upon Dodge's keen sighted warning

If I might give a short hint to an impartial writer it would be to tell him his fate. If he resolved to venture life on the danger us precipices of telling unbiased truth let him proclaim war with mankind—neither to give nor take quarter. If he tells the crimes of great men they fall upon him with the iron hand of the law, if he tells them of virtues, when they have any then the mob attacks him with slander But if he regards truth let him expect many blows on both sides, and then he may go on fearless, and this is the course I take myself

IRONCLADS AND DUCKS —A late number of the Richmond Sentinel contains the following

We had no conception of the damage done the boasted ironclads of the roving pirate sea monsters of the United States, by the Charleston forts, till we read the late honest confessions of the commanders of those vessels that they were no match for the forts, that contrary to their ardent expectations the most powerful ironclads yet chased were unable to cope with land batteries and that the naval force of the United States cannot take Charleston! The question of ship and forts may now be considered as forever settled, and the superiority of forts has been established times in former wars and unparalleled by all the modern improvements in mid engineering Such a naval armament and as that which has been operating for six months against Charleston has never been before employed in the wars of the world And now all acknowledges itself beaten and humbly confesses that Charleston, if taken at all cannot be taken by sea

And to whom belongs the credit of the most successful and magnificent series of fortifications against ships that history records? Why, Engineers, with limited means and resources at their command, have driven back the most powerful armament that the world has ever seen We have thus invalided the thing Will Bomb and model the defense of Charleston as wonderful as that of Sebastopol? And why is it that Congress does not utter that name and give it forth as the thanks which every man in the nation speaks and which such exalted genius well deserves? We know not why But if Congress would atone for its many sins and mean short comings, if it cleanses and purifies itself, it should have discoursed so much sound and fully let it utter with its dying breath, Beauregard

Down, the past summer the only stroke of success that they shown with sparkling brilliance upon our somewhat sooty sky, is that now gleaming from the battlements of Charleston The right man has been in the right place and he has been supported by a faithful and self sacrificing people All honor to Charleston and its fair and brave defenders! Immortal honors to that great and virtuous chief whose transcendent talents and energy are only equaled by the rare distinguished traits of his nature and the lofty and noble motives of his character While such as he stand the children of military genius still gather the armies of the South in Lee, Johnston Hardee and Longstreet Grand Rapids says that of other states not yet mentioned in position whose drill and discipline gives promise [illegible] grand career, doubt and despondency will be dismissed, and Gratitude Faith and Hope animate every Confederate heart

LADY AMATEURS —Many people find a difficulty to make fancy articles or rather to design them When a hint or anything of sort is on the tapis they desire to contribute but feel ashamed of the inevitable cushion cushion dotted lamp mat, or such pattern ady If they had but new ideas! But they have not and so the matter ends All that is required is a little invention Something nobody ever saw before will attract at once!

In Godey's Magazine are several very pretty ideas—one a lady her skirt studded in cushion her pockets and sashes receptacle for scissors needle books, bodkins etc and receptacle for spool cotton on her head a basket on her head holds buttons etc This might be varied in twenty ways A muff might be a pin cushion cloth and flannel skirts a needle book the bodkin might form a corset board, and a work bag might hold the thimble! Another design is a delicate scuttle emery bag of black morocco lined with cherry silk, the emery bag within, and filling up just half the scuttle There is no end to such designs and when you feel impelled for fancy work, look about you and take a hint from some of the commonest articles of household furniture, which, unattractive as they may be, will, when manufactured in silk and velvet, earn and deserve that feminine epithet of praise, "cunning" These little articles ornament a salon or parlor very much. They throw an air of home about a room, and remind one that a woman's hands and heart are busy there I have seen drawing rooms furnished superbly which lacked the pleasant prettiness of some little family parlor—with ingrain carpet and cane bottomed chairs, where a pretty work basket, some books, a bird cage, lamp mats, knit by the mother, and baskets embroidered by the girls, and the tidies crotcheted by the fingers of the smallest child—made the place bright and charming, in the most unexpensive manner

BARBERS AND BAR KEEPERS —The barbers of this city are now charging a dollar for shaving, two dollars for trimming the beard and four dollars for trimming the hair and beard. We do not blame the barbers for charging these seemingly enormous prices Flour is selling for two hundred and forty dollars per barrel, and barbers must live as well as other people Living without eating is an economical but a brief pastime But living without paying for what is eaten, is an impossibility in these days The barbers therefore must charge high prices or starve But the time has come to dispense with barbers and to save the money now wasted in employing them Barbers can be more useful elsewhere than in their shops Gentlemen must shave themselves and trim their own beards When their hair needs cutting the home folks must cut it It will be roughly done, perhaps, but will answer well enough in war times!

Colored bar keepers are in the same category with barbers. They are not only of no use to the army or the people, but are doing injury to both. They must be put to work and kept at it That work must be connected in some way with the great business of the war, which should engage from this moment the energies of every living being, white or black, bond or free, in the Confederacy All of us must lend a helping hand, and why should bar keepers be left at liberty to coin money by poisoning both soldiers and citizens?—Richmond Whig, Jan 27th

AMERICAN AND FRENCH SOLDIERS —London December 16 —I will give you an honest French opinion upon the American soldier The gentleman first referred to has had numerous opportunities of examining the merits of both armies, Northern and Southern, and he unhesitatingly gave the preference to the former A question put to him led him to draw a comparison between the American and French soldier, and this he did in the following terms:

The Northern armies are much better equipped than ours We have rifled muskets in certain regiments de luxe only, but all their troops are armed with the most improved weapons of modern warfare The Northern soldier is much more powerful physically than the French and indeed, than the troops of any army I have seen and has the characteristic step, the same élan, the same spirit which gentlemen as our own men Beyond this, our rich steamers and luxurious delis better. Our soldiers will attempt anything they are ordered but of their republican ease or easy times they say this thing is stoke and give up in despair Not so the American! He acts upon the idea that he must win and every successive repulse only nerves him with greater determination and courage for the next trial The only thing the American armies want is officers and, in the natural course of events they will get these

LEAP YEAR PRIVILEGES —A Chicago girl tired of waiting for the young men who don't 'propose'—probably on account of the expense, for the preponderance of girls since the butchery by war—takes advantage of the season, and speaks out boldly in her own name in the "Wants" column of the Chicago Tribune, as follows "This is leap year I will wait no longer So here I am, twenty one years, healthy, prepossessing, medium size full chest, educated prudent, large sparkling eyes, long black flowing hair and as full of fun as a chestnut is full of meat Desire to raise some man happy, and want a home Does any body want me?"

ANTIPODES —I hear men who never read the Constitution not never hear it read ranting about its violation

I hear men who never do a day's work in their lives howling about the influx of negroes as injury to white laborers

I hear men who ask about the President's violation of the Constitution when they have never seen or read what rebellion is in which it violates the Constitution

I hear men justify Jeff Davis and the South who have not the manhood or decency to go there and seek a home that's so well suited to a man who loves slavery more than his country and freedom

I see a man talking about peace and compromise, after he has been kicked and spit upon by the South

THE ELECTION.—The result yesterday gives general satisfaction. Mr. Failing has a very handsome majority over his opponent, who of course had no idea of being elected, and was brought out only for the sake of competition, by certain crafty fellows, who used an innocent and unsophisticated man for the purpose of making a pretence of opposition and to bleed their victim. He has had the credit of running, and of paying for the privilege. Doubtless, he is satisfied with the experiment, and we suppose every body else is. There was more strife as to the Recorder, as Mr. McCoy has many friends, who, through sympathy, supported him. The city might have had a worse magistrate—we believe Mr. Mulkey would have faithfully done his duty in that office, but as the people did not prefer him, we submit to their choice.

In regard to the Marshal, there was also a sharp contest: Mr. Grooms, nominated at the mass meeting, is beaten by Capt. Henry L. Hoyt and Mr. Williams for Assessor was beaten by Mr. James W. Going. The balance of the Union ticket was elected.

For the Council, there was some real display in the different wards, but the result is gratifying. Every body could not be successful. Those who are so, are good men, and will unquestionably do their duty. We think, so far as we can learn, that the city has as fair and intelligent a Council, as it has ever had. Some of the members are new, but we believe all of them will be faithful and competent servants of the city, and will prove themselves worthy of the confidence which has been reposed in them. The following is the vote:

THE OLD KING OF THE PLAINS.—Citizens of Portland will remember a remarkable tusk of a mastodon, which was found in Polk county, some five or six years ago, and placed on exhibition at Mr. Barrell's building, then known as the Portland Theatre. It was a genuine fragment of the Mastodon Giganteus—the old King of the North American Plains. The owner was offered $1,000 for it, but refused the money, and it was subsequently taken to New Orleans via the Isthmus of Panama, thence to St. Louis, and finally to Rochester, New York, where it has just been added to the Cabinet of the Rochester University. The tusk is six inches in diameter at the larger end, and about two and a half inches at the smaller. Its length is about four feet, which is perhaps not more than one half the original. The shape of the tusk is quite unlike that of the elephant, and the quality of the ivory is very inferior to the latter.

WIND.—We have not experienced such a day for wind, in Portland, for many months, as we had yesterday. Besides the customary amount for electioneering purposes, we felt the effects of a different kind, commonly called a gale, which seemed to sweep everything before it. Several awnings and signs were blown down, along the streets, and those by-gone nuisances needed frequent potations of third on their guards and fenders, to keep from alarming the city by a horrid noise, and to prevent fire from friction. But "'tis an ill wind that blows nobody good," so the success of candidates congratulated themselves; and the sloop Christmas made a trip to Vancouver in six hours.

"NATIVE SILVER."—Two rich specimens of silver bearing quartz rock—perhaps as rich as was ever found any where in North America—were received at Tracy & King's Assay office, in this city yesterday. The locality of the lead from which they were taken, has not yet been made known, for good reasons we presume, although it is known to be in our new mines. It needs no particular test to display its worth, that is visible to the optics, still a few feet would n't be bad to have.

BARNY WEBB, ETC.—We observed a train of animals heavily loaded with bacon, crossing the old condemned bridge, on Front street, in the vicinity of the State Penitentiary yesterday. A curiosity to know why any one should cross that bridge, in its present condition, disclosed the fact that the risk was taken to avoid paying toll. By turning off, before the gate, a saving of about $5 was made, to the owner of the train, but had he lost a mule he would n't have gained so much.

THE MARIA.—"The steamboat Maria, her boats, tackle, furniture, etc.," will soon be among the things that were. The whole upper deacke, hog-chain mast, and much of the machinery, was taken out yesterday, and all that is left rests upon chains, passed under the hull, attached to the wharf and that boats.

THE SCHOOL MEETING.—The attendance at the school meeting last evening was large, and the proceedings harmonious. Josiah Failing was elected Director, and L. M. Parrish Clerk, to serve for the ensuing year.

VOTE OF THE CITY.—By reference to the vote cast yesterday, it will be seen that 875 were polled for Mayor.

WASHINGTON THEATRE.—A full house and a warm reception greeted Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne, on her re-appearance at this establishment last evening, in her own a lapta'n of the play of "Griselda." The play was well and handsomely put upon the stage, and all the actors and actresses were good. Miss Frances B. Gossin made her first appearance before a Portland audience, and we give a sonnet. We trust and hope that this young girl will not be a passing star one, and lovers of the Drama should encourage the time.

NEWBERG EXPRESS.—We learn from Capt. Thayer that an Express has been established between the Dalles and Victoria, for the purpose of transmitting the latest newspapers to the people along the route. The Express connects with the steamer Enterprise and will no doubt prove a paying enterprise.

CASTING BREAD UPON THE WATERS.—The horse attached to the bread wagon belonging to the Eagle Bakery, took fright while in the lower part of the city, yesterday, and ran away, literally demolishing the wagon, and scattering bread promiscuously along the streets for some distance.

STORE EXTENSION.—Messrs. Hodge & Calef have recently made some desirable improvements to their drug store, consisting of a large and substantial brick extension.

FREIGHT FOR LEWISTON.—The Oregon Steam Navigation Company are now prepared to receive freight for Lewiston.

SEWING-MACHINES.—No article of household use is more important than a sewing machine. So popular has this machine grown in public favor, that it is now considered almost indispensable in every family. Over a hundred thousand families already possess one of them, and each week yields nearly another thousand to the list, and so the ratio of the demand increases in proportion as the advantages of the invention become known. The sewing machine of the present day is not, however, the sewing machine of some years back. Though retaining the first principles, many and valuable improvements have been applied, and various modifications and alterations of machinery found necessary to increase the speed and efficiency, render it more simple and noiseless, and adapt it well the different requirements of family and the workshop. The Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Company, among the first to produce a practical sewing machine, have been the most successful in attaining these results. Their machines are now to be found in almost every part of the world.—Americus Agriculturist.

Our merchants should bear in mind that they can now purchase HENDERSON, HASTINGS & Co's. make of clothing at wholesale. They have recently moved to their new building, corner of Battery and Pine, San Francisco, and are doing a fine jobbing trade.

Why did n't the last dove return to the ark? Because she had sufficient ground for remaining.

DETTER'S HAIR RESTORATIVE
FOR BALD HEADS.
IT IS NOT MY INTENTION TO HUMBUG THE PUBLIC. This Restorative has built up a world-wide reputation upon its own merits, as is considered by those who have used it, to be the best article ever invented for the Hair. Read the following certificate:
LEWISTON, Sept. 30, 1863.
This is to certify that I have used DETTER'S HAIR RESTORATIVE, and I take great pleasure in recommending it to the public as a safe and effectual preparation for the restoration of the Hair. I was nearly bald when I commenced the use of it, and after using two bottles, I find it has produced a fine, healthy growth of hair, and that, too, in less than two months. I can heartily recommend it for its great virtues and efficiency. S. D. RANSDELL,
Witness: F. H. SIMMONS.

A Sick-Bed

Long, hast thou watched me led
And smoothed the pillow soft
For the sorrowful head
With tender kindness oft

Oh, smooth it yet again:
As soft your hand and light
Once—only once—and then
I need the touch no more

Yet here I lay me down
Where I may look and long
Through many a quiet sunday
And many a night of song

But bear me on earth
Beneath the open sky
Where onets present are
The light of the sun and the

There three at the on g days
I shall not die to the
My weary ide to rest
And shall it tenderly

There sw ety shall I sleep
Nor will thou dare to bring
And put to my bot lip
Cold water to the spring

Nor wet a kerchief in Upon my morning brow
Nor from my eyelids shade
The sun that wounds them now

Nor watch that none shall tread
Will noisy footstep nigh
Nor lis on my bed
To hear my faint sigh

And feign a look of cheer
And words of comfort speak
For turn it shall the tear
That gathers in the cheek

Beside me will I rear
The loving birds will sing
The flowers that please me best
Bloss rose and violet

Then to the rest I crave
Resign me till I see
The face of Him who gave
His life for thee and me

Yet, with the setting sun
Come now and then at eve,
And think of me as one
For whom thou should st not grieve,

Who, when the kind release
From sin and suffering came,
Passed to the adopted peace
In murmuring thy name

Leave at my side a space
Where thou will come, at last,
To find a resting place
When many years are past

—From Bryant's Thirty Poems

A Story of Duelng

The practice of duelng was probably at its height during the latter end of the eighteenth century, and the beginning of the nineteenth

All Europe was convulsed New nations were receiving the baptism of blood old ones were being sacrificed, and by a murderous hand Dynasties were tottering and tumbling The political horizon was obscured by a mist, and its hue was crimson

Mutinies were going on everywhere—in mind and matter, in public and private relations, in low and high estates, in opulence and indigence Everything was being changed, and the universal instrument was the sword The hand of improvement was bloody

But even revolution pauses Occasionally there were lulls

But the mind of men are not nations The passions of men are not the phases of polity These cannot pause And from these lulls, from these minds, and from these passions, the Duello, the spirit of polite murder, arose from comparative infancy to the acme of its influence Men were crippled daily and hourly sometimes for mere pastime, in hot blood, and cold, generously and malignantly The good sword man adored it There were men who could count up their murders on their fingers, and go through the digits of the hands and begin over again

Achille de Beaumont was just such a one Achille St Pierre de Beaumont step son of the Marquis de Chesnea no money, forty years old, and handsome still Maitre d'Armes and Lieutenant of the Imperial Gaard That is all the description necessary for this story of his doom Dueling had become his passion, his sole delight He quarrelled with people in order to kill them He had slain his first cousin a mere boy, to keep his hand in He had slain half his friends and crippled the rest Only one was spared, left whole!

"I should like to kill thee too, Maurice," said the duellist, regretfully, 'but I cannot I must have a friend—one friend—the Duello requires a second"

In return for this unparalleled magnanimity, Maurice seemed to love his friend extravagantly Truly he was a faithful jackal, was Maurice It was said that upon more than one occasion he had furnished prey to the lion He had pushed a poor young victomte and had forfeited his life the next morning at daylight There were other instances, but the above will suffice At any rate Maurice was fond of contributing to his friend's vanity At the cafe, or at the lclpb such a conversation (for the special benefit of by standers) was not of rare occurrence

Maurice (sipping his brandy)—"Let me see, my dear Achille, what is the number of your duels?"

Achille (sipping his brandy)—"Thirty-six, exactly"

Maurice—"And let me see—really I have forgotten—out of these thirty six there were fatal—?"

Achille (twirling his moustache)—"Twenty four"

Maurice—"And, my dear Achille if I mistake not—really my memory is provoking—in those thirty six duels you were wounded or scratched—?"

Achille (with pardonable hauteur)—"Never"

And upon a certain evening toward the end of March, when the cafe was overflowing a conversation very similar to the above was brought to an unusual denouement

The scornful Never had just burst from the curling lips of the Maitre d'Armes, as it had burst successfully many a time before, when a young man glided from somewhere in the crowd to the side of the boaster and said, politely,

"Will Monsieur be so condescending as to favor me with his name?"

Achille de Beaumont of the Guard"

Monsieur I have come from Lyons to seek you, continued the young man and coolly elevating the half empty tumbler of the Maitre d'Armes, he cast the contents in his face.

The duelist appeared paralyzed with astonishment but the young man left him no time to gape Seizing the nose of the Maitre d'Armes he pulled it and wrung it, and twisted it, till the victim fairly squealed

Then, still retaining his hold on the nose, with his disengaged hand he collected a handful of the filthy sawdust with which the floor of the cafe was covered, and crammed it down the vociferating mouth at the same time rubbing it well into the eyes Having gone thus far in a very quiet business like manner the young man believed the sufferer and stood calmly by, addressing the spectators in the following terms

'Gentlemen, my name is Henri Duval my place of residence is Lyons I am a gold beater by trade A year ago our family was composed of four—a mother a daughter and two sons To-day our family is composed of one—myself You lee wretch is the cause My brother was a lieutenant of infantry He was unutterably beautiful he was noble and brave, our hopes were centred in him our lives were nothing but eyes that watched his career This man murdered him He purposely insulted him compelled a challenge took his life When my mother heard of it she was ill the blow killed her My sister is dead of a broken heart Gentlemen, can you guess why I am here? Can you doubt that my mission is vengeance Can you imagine that failure is possible with me?

Brought mad the man out with had spat at the sawdust and drank in the glasses of brandy Here is the measure of my weapon—hanging bunch of paper cutters I put it in my pocket

Thanks thanks cried the young man joyfully There is a throb in this I feel the blood rushing through my veins You approach a green and pleasant land There is an open glade, let the time be daybreak and to morrow

At that place will I meet you said Beaumont and that time precisely you shall meet your brother in the world

We shall see said the audacious young man and I hope so

Of course the duel was the young man's private behavior, the unusual delicacy of the challenge and the fame of the Maitre d'Armes created a profound sensation and every one who had witnessed the scene looked forward to witnessing the duel with almost as much interest as the actors themselves Several gentlemen had been present whose sense of duty had been overpowered by the desire to see the fight

And to make a long story short as this is with the end of my tale I will merely mention that the parties met at the appointed time and place the only notable event in the preliminaries being the young man's difficulty in procuring a second from among the spectators most of whom were fearful of incurring the displeasure of the lieutenant, who had a well known knack of fighting his opponents' seconds on the first available occasion—that the struggle was longer than usual and, finally, that the young man received the rapier of Achille de Beaumont right through the centre of his heart and expired with a groan of baffled vengeance and his clay was borne to the common dead house, for he had no friends

It was the evening of that bloody day at the cafe The customary crowd was there and a few more besides, for the fame of the duelist had received an accretion since morning And the Maitre d'Armes himself, was there so was his pimp friend I should say—both in excellent spirits the former, especially for it may be told that for the first time in his life Monsieur le Lieutenant had felt apprehensions previous to meeting the strange young man Henri Duval He had been a thing so supremely deadly in the calmness of demeanor—something so eager yet passionless in his bestowal of the insult—something so unaffectedly joyful in his aspect when made aware that his subject, the duel, the mortal meeting, was to be consummated—that even the brave bully, even while flaming under the monstrous maple he had been subjected to, was touched with doubt that it was akin to fear

AN INCIDENT ON PICKET —A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial relates the following

One day the 108th Ohio regiment was on picket near Rossville, when a rebel captain and two of his men entered The captain walked in, and on surrendering himself to one of the pickets, recognized him as his own son—a resident of Cincinnati whose name is suppressed for obvious reasons Rushing forward, the captain was in the act of clasping him in his arms with the exclamation "O, my son!" when the soldier rudely shoved him from him with the remark

"Your son! Get out, you infernal old rebel! Do you suppose I would have you for a father?"

'But, I am your long absent father" persisted the rebel

'My father! Well, boys, that's a go" laughed the soldier Here's a old rebel says he is my father, when my father has been dead these seven years'

The tears started to the old man's eyes and resting his head upon a stump he wept like a child, while the pickets looked on with astonishment Composing himself, the rebel captain called the soldier to him and related incidents of a family nature that were unquestionable of the truth of his assertions The old man had been engaged in business in Cincinnati, failed fled South, leaving his family to shift for themselves For a while letters were frequent but at last they ceased altogether A few months after the family read the death of its absent loved one in a Southern paper Time passed on, the wound caused by death had been healed, the son enlisted in the 108th, and on Tuesday met his long mourned parent under the above circumstances As the old man recounted minutely all that he had passed through in the South, the picket gradually softened, and he, too, found relief in tears.

A SINGULAR TRADITION —Among the Seminole Indians there is a singular tradition regarding the white man's origin and superiority They say that when the Great Spirit made the earth he also made three men, all of whom were fair complexioned and that after making them, he led them into the margin of a small lake, and bade them leap in and wash One obeyed and came out of the water purer and fairer than before the second hesitated a moment during which time the water agitated by the first, had become muddied and when he bathed he came up copper colored the third did not leap until the water became black with mud and he came out with his own color. Then the Great Spirit led before them three packages, and out of pity for his misfortune in color, gave the black man the first choice He took hold of each of the packages, and having felt the weight chose the heaviest the copper colored man took the next heaviest leaving the white man the lightest When the packages were opened the first was found to contain spades hoes and all the implements of labor, the second unwrapped hunting fishing and warlike apparatus the third gave the white man pens ink and paper—the engines of the mind and the real foundation of the white man's superiority

OUR COUNTRY RIGHT OR WRONG —The time has been when the Democratic party inscribed this motto upon their banners and boasted that the party in all circumstances was true to the nation Who does not remember how the old Federalists who were opposed to the war of 1812 were taunted and scoffed at by the Democracy because they were for peace? It matters not how pure in character how lofty in its aspirations how faithful the intellect of the cultivated mind the man who opposed that war was a traitor—a doomed man politically With the fate of the Federalist in their memory it is not strange that the party has since ruled by their low British Clan who blind so strictly to party that in their extravagant zeal could defend that in the war of 1812 that was very properly yet there was one exception that is to say while now there is no excuse but treason to be with the Democracy at this time it is our party right or wrong and determined to occupy it so I would have it be as faithful that fidelity of Benedict Arnold will be instilled in given them the old Federalist for Arnold was a patriot compared with the Copperheads of the present day—St Louis Call

Why should the letter x start the letter A? Because it makes men mad

NEWSPAPERS —A newspaper is a school in a family worth ten dollars a year Even the most barren papers bring something new Children read or hear the contents—gain intelligence of the affairs of the world and acquire useful knowledge of men and things Of them in life than 1 per cent of fifty years of Parents are not aware of the vast importance of newspapers in a family of children We have the remark before us and we repeat it that take two families equally smart, and both going to the same school—let one of them have the free use of a newspaper and it would excite astonishment to mark the difference between them Full one half and an important half of education as it prepares for the business of the world and the ability to rise and make one's self respectable in it is derived from newspapers What parent would not wish his children respected? Who would be willing to have his son a blockhead more intelligent than his own? Yet how trifling the sum a paper costs! It is even in these hard times absolutely contemptible in amount and no man ever felt it except the benighted consequences who paid up subscriptions regularly once a year
